

FRAZER JOINS PEACH AT THE THATCH

FRAZER - WIDE EXPERIENCE IN THE TRADE

Frazer Sutherland is now running The Thatch in Thame, Oxon, one of the 10 food-led pubs in the award-winning Peach group formerly run by the winners in Raymond Blanc's The Restaurant TV show.

Frazer has become general manager after a five-year stint running his own pub, The Bell at Beachampton in Buckinghamshire.

A passion for food at school led Frazer to an all-round catering management qualification at

Northampton College, and then onto a spell travelling to Australia and the Caribbean to work in hospitality.

Returning to London, he worked at the classic club venue The Green Room (now Chinawhite) before becoming café bar manager of The Fifth Floor Restaurant Harvey Nichols, and also served at The Oxo Tower.

"I joined Peach because I knew their reputation and liked their values," says Frazer. "In coming to Thame, I'm hoping to build on the great work that's already been done here and make The Thatch the place to eat and drink in the area."
